

I come from a big family all under one house. I have five aunts and five uncles. we were all squished into one small house in California. We weren't very wealthy hence the reason we had a house stuffed with multiple Mexicans. Although we didn't have much money we made it work, we always did and during this time I was the poorest I have ever been but also the happiest because I was always with my family. There was never a dull moment in that house from running around in the destructive California heat to getting in fights with my cousins.
