

Heyy, my name is Angie Mosqueda and I am fifteen years old. I was born in Los Angeles, California the city of stars. I then moved to Washington and entered Lynden High School as a freshman. I am a bookworm, I love reading books, and I write my own story. I also love drawing, mostly landscapes and animals. One of my favorite categories are the adventure movies. I love watching them when you're scared but still some of my favorite things to do is stargaze. Another thing about me is that I have my own future planned. I want to be a doctor and get my Dr. degree and be successful. I want to go to UCLA or San Diego University once I get out of high school with good grades.
