My name is Kayden Pietroski, I'm 15 years old,I've got quite a large and difficult family. My biological dad and my mom had me and my older brother then broke up, my mom re-married and had two more kids with my stepdad, then they got a divorce. Now she's with a new guy who already has a kid. My dad went off and had a couple girlfreinds but now he re-married as well and had another kid with my now stepmom so i've got a pretty difficult and large family. I enjoy riding bikes or spending time with my family and friends. I'm not really a fan of school but if I had to pick what my favorite subject is I would probably choose woodshop.I'm glad that school's almost out and how fast it went by, i just hope the rest of the years go by just as fast. A couple things that are nice about having many families is when the holidays roll around. But it does kind of suck with thanksgiving because I have to choose who's food I eat but at the same time I don't want to make them feel bad about it. In my entire life I've never had to go to the hospital, I've never broke a bone before either. The worst injury I've ever had was when i dislocated my knee. The funny thing was that i did it while at school and i didn't even know that i had dislocated it. It happened at the very beginning of the period and i didn't really know what had happened so i waited until the end of the period to tell the teacher and then Mr. Cortheist came in and told me I had dislocated it and set it back in place and gave me a knee brace but that's all that happened. I'm not very good at this computer stuff and it takes me awhile to learn it all but i hope in the future it helps me out and comes in handy which im sure it will because of the way stuff works now days.
